Kirin: Nowadays most young people aren't willing to get married early . Why is it that way ? In the past after boyfriends and girlfriends got together , soon after , they would get married . But nowadays it doesn't seem to be this way . These days many people wait till after they have received their university degree or master's degree , before considering getting married . Some people believe , before getting married , they should find a good job . And then prepare to get married . When they get engaged , the man will normally buy an expensive ring to give to his future wife . As well, if the bride and groom want all their family and friends to attend their wedding , their wedding budget will be quite high . But the people attending the wedding , will probably give the bride and groom a red envelope . This is a tradition in China . Although people spend a lot of money when organizing a wedding , the red envelopes received will help the bride and groom save some of their budget , and let them have some money to live their future lives together .
