Raphael: Let's first listen to today's article at a normal speed .

Kirin: Every year, many Hollywood movies are released , that they hope will attract a large audience that will go to the movie theaters to see the movies they made . To make the movies interesting for audiences , they have to look for new ways to make the movie . One method is to use a lot of special effects . Especially when making horror movies or action movies , since this makes the movies look more realistic and exciting . This makes audiences feel that the content they are watching is really happening in front of them . But the problem is , some people feel that Hollywood depends too much on special effects . Even in some basic romantic movies, you can now see special effects appearing . Does it make sense to use special effects here ? If audiences find out that the movies they are watching are mostly made of special effects , they probably won't be as moved by content that is only created using special effects .

Raphael: Let's listen again to today's article at a slowed down speed .
