Lesson 399 Notes :

1. The expression : Bú pà yī wàn, zhǐ pà wànyī sounds better in Chinese because it's a play on the characters yīwàn and wànyī which have different meanings when inverted.

Bú pà yī wàn, zhǐ pà wànyī

不怕一万，只怕万一 / 不怕一萬，只怕萬一

Don't be afraid of having many things occur, just be afraid of the one unexpected thing

yīwàn                                      一万 / 一萬                                      ten thousand

wànyī                                      万一 / 萬一                                      just in case

2. Méiyǒu fùchū jiù méiyǒu shōuhuò has similar meaning to “No pain, no gain” in English.

Méiyǒu fùchū jiù méiyǒu shōuhuò

没有付出就没有收获 / 沒有付出就沒有收穫

No investment results in no gain

3. Zì zuò zì shòu can be thought of as meaning “One who reaps what he sows”.

Zì zuò zì shòu                              自作自受 / 自作自受                              One receives as one does
